Open Call

How can Global Cities Reach Housing Affordability?

From their inauguration both the “White City” of Tel Aviv and the “Neues Frankfurt” have dealt with the question of providing affordable housing while implementing the newest planning ideas and technologies of the time. Nowadays when cities are dealing with the quest to plan resilient urban landscapes the same questions are relevant we invite researchers and radical thinkers to share their insight about inspiring and innovative affordable housing projects.

From past to present to future:

How can cities attract private NGOs to invest in communal housing projects?

Are you an outstanding socially conscious investor in housing projects?

Have you planned an innovative housing project?

Have you any radical future visions for communal housing?

Have you done research on affordable housing?
